

Careers in Hospitality

Research project

Building a career in the hospitality industry is very exciting and challenging. The choices are vast and competitive. The world of the 21st century is ever changing and the Hospitality field is looking to meet those changes head on. Are you creative, detail oriented a free thinker or one who strategically gets the job done? Do you love science, find fulfillment in writing or are crunching the numbers what sets you apart. Whatever your strengths are they can be highlighted in this industry. Employ ability is key to success in the Hospitality industry.

1. Your task is to research a career in the hospitality industry and present your findings to an audience of your peers. Pick a from the list below or something of interest. Become the expert in this career (Education, geographic area of employment, Salary, Years involved in building success) what personality types would be best situated towards this type of work. Include levels of dedication and professional development (extra courses) that one would need to keep with current industry trends.
2. You are to write a minimum of three pages; double spaced telling me about the career, what kind of educational and work experience is needed to succeed in said career. AND what are the benefits – how much you get paid, how you can get recognized in this career. I also want to know about the down sides of this career – what kinds of things would you have to do – long hours standing, etc.

You must cite all your sources (minimum of 3 one should be in hard print) MLA Format

Flavor Chemist	Product developers	Food Sales
Nutritionist	Marketing	Other_____
Food Photographers	Food stylist	Other_____
Food scientist	FOH Managers
Microbiologists	Test kitchen (cooks, recipe development)
Food and Beverage workers	Chef
Event planners	Personal chef
Food prep workers	Hotel workers
Bakers	Food writers
Butchers	Entrepreneurs
Food Scientists Tech	Banquet managers	